Mr. Cheney warns that a quick withdrawal of our forces from Iraq could allow “victorious” Muslims extremists to fan out in other countries. I do not think that Muslim extremists will ever be victorious, as Islam does not allow extremism, but I do support Mr. Cheney.

We must not pull out of Iraq hastily. For if we did, there will be Iraqi rule again and this might mean that the reconstruction contracts that we have awarded to like minded contractors will be in jeopardy. This might also mean that our economy as well as the economies of our allies will suffer. There is also the chance that as soon as we leave Iraq, without setting it straight, the Iraqis might come up with more stories like Abu-Ghraib. We do not want that to happen as this will tarnish our image as the banner holders of civilization.

You see Mr. Cheney, or someone, has perfected this nice business plan: (1) Tarnish a country’s image and paint it as a threat to the world peace; make sure it has some natural wealth. (You do not have to be absolutely true. For if you collected lies to con the world into believing that the country is a threat to the world and the lies get exposed you would still have your army in the country and possession is nine tenths of the law.) (2) Attack it and completely demolish it in the name of peace. After having demolished it start rebuilding it, in the name of humanity and peace, awarding rebuilding contracts to companies that support your vision for world peace. The money can and “will” come from the country’s resources. If the country has no wealth you can always force the world to cough up the costs of reconstruction. Remember that world peace can only be attained by keeping the biggest bully regime on earth happy and most of our “allies” know it. There is always the danger of casualties in a war. But look at it this way. Those who enlist are usually, at the lowest rung of social ladder wanting to improve their lot, African Americans and Latinos in our case. There is always some price you have to pay for trying to improve your lot. There is the danger though of some fellow countrymen having a conscience, a very bad thing to have if you are working for the good of the country and for the world peace. They can however be punished in some indirect fashion, say by making public what is wrong (or right) with the person’s spouse!

A nice variation of the above plan has already been put to use, for example you do not have to go to the trouble of collecting false evidence. You can make a minor event a “Big Case”, which can even be manufactured. Israel has recently set a very good example of that. In the past the Israelis have often made raids on Lebanese territory to capture or kill elements which are unhealthy for Israel, usually there is no proof of them being unhealthy. Recently (July 2006) the Hezbollah “terrorists” somehow got into “Israeli territory”, attacked an Israeli patrol, captured some soldiers, and killed some. These guys are so unreasonable. They want their homes and their land back! I wonder how they surprised the Israeli patrol, was there a “tip”? In any case, Israel was looking for a chance to “promise” a crushing defeat. So, the 34 day war started. The Hezbollah were apparently ready and quite dug in. But who wanted to fight Hezbollah? The warriors under the flag bearing the Star of David were more interested in bombing the bridges and civilian targets; because they saw their goliaths there. Now that various countries have coughed up a lot of money for the reconstruction of Lebanon, an Australian newspaper notes that the thirty four day war is not even a blip on the Israeli economic radar. Why is it that I am not surprised?

Coming back to Mr. Cheney, I admire that man. I think that rather than criticizing him we should try to understand him. He is steadfast. He once said that Iraq had WMD's, he still says that and there is no proof that would make him flinch from his claim. Let us make him a President. I promise you that if Mr. Cheney is our president Al Capone will reign again and internationally. He will not only take the present reconstruction racket to its extremes but will introduce protection rackets that old mobsters could not even dream of. We do really need a new protection racket; the UNO is kind of getting old. How about "Anti Islamic Fascism Organization"? Under AIFO, we can arrange to send our troops to all Muslim countries to "save" them from Al-Qaeda. Arranging a few Al-Qaeda style bombings and some statements from "Al-Qaeda" would be no hassle in this day and age. If any Muslim country refuses to join, we can always threaten to bomb them into the Stone Age.
